

Diederik Lohman, MA

Interim Director, Health and Human Rights Division, Human Rights Watch

Diederik Lohman is the Associate Director of the Health and Human Rights Division at Human Rights Watch. He leads the organization's research and advocacy on palliative care and pain treatment. As part of the project, he has spearheaded advocacy at the U.N. Commission on Narcotic Drugs, the International Narcotics Control Board, the World Health Organization and other international institutions. He has conducted or supervised research on palliative care in Armenia, India, Kenya, Mexico, Russia, Senegal and Ukraine and various other countries. He has also conducted extensive research on and written about drug dependence treatment and HIV treatment for drug users, and HIV testing and counseling. Previously, he served as senior researcher for Russia, Ukraine and Belarus with the Europe and Central Asia Division of Human Rights Watch and as its Moscow office director.